Remote Work Policy

Internal policy document | Confidential

1. Purpose

This policy establishes the expectations for hybrid and remote work arrangements across the enterprise. It is designed to support productivity, service continuity, and employee wellbeing while preserving cybersecurity and compliance requirements.

Employees are expected to maintain the same standard of performance, responsiveness, and professionalism whether working from the office or a remote location. Managers must document work expectations, availability windows, and team collaboration norms for each remote arrangement.

2. Eligibility and Scheduling

Remote work is available to employees in roles that can be executed effectively away from the office without material operational risk. Employees must receive manager approval before adopting a remote schedule.

Standard remote arrangements may not exceed three days per week unless approved by the executive sponsor. Employees must remain reachable during core business hours and must log all planned absences in the timekeeping system.

3. Security and Equipment

Employees working remotely must use company-issued laptops, secure VPN access, and approved collaboration tools. Personal devices may only be used under a policy exception approved by IT and security leadership.

Confidential data must remain within approved systems, and employees must avoid storing policy or customer information on local personal storage or unapproved file-sharing platforms.
